

Khushroo Poacha,
Founder, SEVA Kitchen
and Indian Blood Donors
Nagpur, Maharashtra

Khushroo Poacha, a former Central Railway Chief Office Superintendent in Nagpur, founded Seva Kitchen after seeing families wait, with little access to food or water, at a hospital where his mother had been admitted. In honor of his late mother, Khushroo, along with his wife Fermin, began serving meals to impoverished patients' families. Starting with 25 meals every Sunday, Seva Kitchen has grown into a national movement across 20 cities including Mumbai, Bengaluru and New Delhi. With over 600 volunteers/donors, this initiative feeds hundreds of people at hospitals daily. They also provided vital ration kits during the COVID-19 crisis, including serving meals to widows and cancer patients.

(Video:

<https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=7SqfCUqdZm4>

Website:

<https://sevakitchen.org/>

More info: <https://www.indianblooddonors.com/our-story>)